DeCA scratches SSNs from checks

Effective in May, the Defense Commissary Agency will no longer require customers to put their Social Security numbers on checks when paying for groceries.

DeCA took the action to allay customer concerns about "identity theft, violations of personal privacy, fraud or personal financial loss," said Colonel Ed Jones, DeCA's comptroller.

The agency is also modifying its cash register system to stop printing SSNs on the back of checks.

Customers will still be required to provide their SSN, but not on the checks themselves.

As the week-long strike heads into its final days, customer service managers are congratulating their employees for a job well-done in 'holding down the fort' and look forward to resuming a normally-scheduled work week.

"For a small amount of time, we are able to pull together to make sure things get done," said Steve Endres, Morale Welfare and Recreation (MWR) director, as he swapped his usual suit and tie for an MWR shirt and a chef's hat to man the grill at Champions Sports Club. "But, it sure can't work like this forever. We can only stand on our heads for so long."

During the week, the only degradation in services has been in the reduced service hours, but not in the service, said one community member.

"What I've noticed is that whoever can make it to work has been working at 200 percent to make sure that we don't feel a decline in customer service," said JoAnna McFall, local consumer.

"We've been getting a lot of compliments on how well we've been handling everything here, and that feels good," said Kay Wojtala, duty manager, Champions. "We've been having a lot of fun here. We have no other choice."

The commissary and Champions Sports Club have seen an increase in their lunch-time clientele, but other than that, it's been business as usual, both facilities reported.

Navy Center for Career Development to conduct career decision fair Apr. 16 - 20

JO2 Ricky Allen
Rota Coastline

Navy Personnel Command's Center for Career Development will visit Naval Station, Rota April 16 - 20 to conduct a career decision fair for area service members.

What makes this career development team's visit different is their approach. They're not trying to sell "Stay Navy" to anyone, and they're not going to hold anything back.

"I have been a Career Counselor for 14 years, and although the information has always been available to the members, it was always focused on retaining the individual rather than giving them an unbiased perspective to allow them to make up their mind," said NCC (AW) Eduardo Bastidas, career counselor, Naval Station, Rota. "The CCD gives the member detailed information on what to bargain for at the job-negotiation table and provides excellent information on corporate America," Bastidas said.

The CCD fair is part of the Navy's efforts to improve the Sailor's quality of life and service. The Center's main objective is to create a professional atmosphere, where career decision-making is not a single event conducted when a service member reaches the decision to stay in the military or get out.

My hat's off to volunteers

CAPTAIN'S CORNER

Capt. R. Noble,
COMNAVACT, Spain

It's been a little longer than normal since I last chatted with you via the Captain's Corner... I've been out of town. I had the opportunity to visit the good ol' USA for some training, followed by a few days of leave with my family. I sure like the adventure and excitement that comes with an overseas assignment, but I also love my homeland. I had been away from the USA for over a year; it's always great to get back. I think everyone should spend a little time away from their homeland. Doing so gives an individual the chance to pause and reflect on what he/she might be taking for granted. I believe that time spent away from the USA makes you a better citizen, because it makes you a more appreciative citizen. It's also good to get back to Rota; this is a great place!

As I type out this article we are into our second day of a planned, week-long labor strike. As most of you are aware, the Local Labor protests and demonstrations for the past year, but this is our first extended strike. A Personnel (LLP) are protesting the loss of take-home pay they experienced in January of last year as a result of an additional tax imposed on their wages. We have experienced lot of effort was dedicated to evaluating the impact to routine base operations and how it would affect the community. We have had to close some facilities and reduce hours in others as a result of the strike. Additionally, we are experiencing a reduction in some key services. I'm confident that you have been provided with plenty of good information on how to deal with this labor situation. I just want to emphasize that we all need to be patient, keep our heads on straight, and work our way through yet another unique challenge.

A new topic. Having received numerous, personal requests to provide a meeting space for many of the private organizations on the base, I tasked my staff to compile a listing of available meeting spaces, with seating capacities and points of contact/phone numbers. I noticed that the list was published in a recent edition of the Coastline. There are a wide variety of possible meeting locations on that published list, and any qualified organization looking for a meeting space should not find it too difficult to find a space on that list that meets their needs. Happy hunting!

How about life insurance? I'm not an insurance salesman but I do have a few comments regarding Servicemember Group Life Insurance, commonly referred to as SGLI. The FY01 National Defense Authorization Act provided for the automatic increase of SGLI coverage from $200,000 to a new maximum level of $250,000, effective 01 APR 01. Although servicemembers can elect to reduce the amount of coverage, I encourage you to very carefully consider your actions before electing less than the maximum amount. In a nutshell, SGLI is a bargain. It's a well-deserved benefit of service to our country, and it provides a financial safety net to servicemembers and their families. Sailors electing reduced coverage, or no coverage, should be very mindful of the potential impact this decision may have. I'm telling you, SGLI is a wise investment for the financial security of loved ones.

Speaking of bargains, I'll share a few quick words about what a bargain it is to conserve energy. Energy is something that is easily taken for granted because we seem to have plenty of it. If we're hot we turn on the air conditioner, if cold we turn on the heater, and when we can't see we turn on a light. But it's also important that we remember to turn off/turn down these devices when not needed. We Americans on the base spend more than $4 million per year to purchase electricity and fuel to provide for our basic utilities. We spend another $3 million to operate and maintain the systems that bring these utilities to our homes and workspaces. By conserving only 5% of our annual energy consumption on the base, we can save almost $200,000. That money goes directly back into the base operating budget and it's therefore available to spend on other needed services or programs. And as you know, the base budget is tight and there are plenty of places to spend any extra money. That's why conserving energy is such a bargain. What can you do? It's quite simple...

turn off lights that aren't needed, turn the thermostat up in the summer and open a few windows (you don't need to live in an icebox), turn the thermostat down in the winter (put on a coat or sweater), and put in a trouble call or work request if you see something that's wasting energy.

To wrap it up, I'd like to pass on my gratitude to all of you volunteers out there. Many of you will be recognized at a Volunteer Appreciation Luncheon sponsored by the Navy Fleet and Family Support Center. Your time and effort is essential for our community, and you are all the greater in my eyes because you do it without getting paid. My hat is off to all of you. I'd like to take this opportunity to recognize Kathy Arcement from the FFSC for coordinating and conducting the luncheon. That was a big job; THANK YOU.

Cadiz province to receive 371,000 million pesetas for construction

The Cadiz Information newspaper reports that the Cadiz province will receive a substantial public works investment by the year 2007.

The paper reports that the Ministry of Public Works and Economy will invest 371,000 million pesetas in regional infrastructure projects.

Those projects are expected to create more than 5,000 new temporary construction-related jobs and more than 12,000 jobs as a result of the completed projects.

The current plan is to invest most of the money in regional roads and at the ports of Algeciras and Cadiz.

City of Rota begins construction of “Portalejo” shopping center

Construction has begun on Rota's first-ever shopping mall, reports the newspaper Rota Informacion. The Portalejo shopping center will be about 324,000 square feet in size and will host a multiplex cinema, with seven screens: a recreational game room, various stores and eating establishments, including a Burger King fast food restaurant. Investors are putting in between 800 and 1,000 million pesetas for the project, which is hoped will become a successful commercial and leisure center.

DGF art students get first hand look at pottery creation

Story by JO2 Allen
Rota Coastline

Thirty-eight art ceramic students from DGF High School got hands-on training on making of Japanese Pottery. The two-day process was designed to give students an in-depth look at how pottery was made in the early ages. The style of pottery studied was Japanese.

The students learned different aspects in creating Japanese pottery, from Raku firing at 1,800 degrees, to primitive pot firing, which involved the students digging a large pit lining the pots side-by-side firing the pit for 24 hours. The students returned the next day to unearth their pots from the pit. According to Kay Kinghorn, former art and ceramics teacher, DGF high school, things went really well.

"The process we used only has a 50 percent success ratio. Today, we had a 65 percent success ratio, meaning we did a good job."

Kinghorn added that the students surprised her with how they stayed focused and interested in their work.

"The exciting part for me as a teacher was to listen to comments made by the students as they would pass their work around. To hear them speak about the lessons they learned was great," Kinghorn said.

According to Kelly McCoy, an art student who participated in the project, they learned a variety of lessons.

"I learned the different techniques of firing pots. I also learned that the weather has a lot to do with this form of work and its variables. It's good to get experience with different types of artwork."

Other students, such as Meridith Weyer, said the art project helped her discover a new interest. "It was really interesting working with the clay," she said.

The reconnaissance aircraft was on a routine surveillance mission over international waters. Damage to the aircraft was significant enough to require an emergency landing at a military airfield on the island of Hainan, China. None of the 24 crewmembers aboard the aircraft were reported injured. The Chinese fighter jet crashed into the South China Sea.

U.S.A.F. Pilot ejects safely prior to crash

Apr. 3, MISAWA AIR BASE, Japan (AFP) — First Lt. Mark Hadley ejected safely as his F-16 Fighting Falcon crashed into the sea off northern Japan April 2. ## REDUX Retirement Plan not only option

Military members who fall under the Military Retirement Reform Act of 1986 (popularly known as the REDUX retired pay system) are now under the more lucrative "high three" pay system. However, they may elect to remain under REDUX and receive a bonus if they meet requirements established by the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) of FY00.

One of the highlights of the changes include service members being pulled out of the REDUX retired pay system (40 percent base pay for 20 years) and placed in the "High-3" retired pay system (50 percent base pay for 20 years).

The law also created a lump sum $30,000 Career Status Bonus (CSB) for members who initially entered Aug. 1, 1986, or later who are willing to elect the REDUX retired pay system on their 15th anniversary of active duty and agree to remain on continuous active duty until their 20th anniversary.

Each requirement detailed in NAVADMIN 020/01 must be met to be eligible for the CSB/REDUX retired pay system. Service members who don't meet all the eligibility requirements on their 15th anniversary of active duty will not have the opportunity to elect the CSB/REDUX, unless the member falls within exceptions issued by the Secretary of the Navy.

Earthday 2001, slated for week-long celebration

Erin Kaczmarczyk-Woods
Public Works Environmental

Traditionally, the Public Works Environmental Division on Naval Station, Rota has extended Earth Day into Earthweek, and this year is no different. This year's Earth Week 2001 is April 16 - April 20, with Earth Day on Sunday, April 22.

The original Earthday was established in 1976 by U.S. Senator Gaylord Nelson from Wisconsin. This was seen as the first successful, nationwide, environmental protest and marked the beginning of the modern environmental movement. Since 1976, Earthday has expanded into an international, environmental event and is used to promote environmental awareness around the world.

Last year's global Earthday saw more than 200 million participants in over 184 different countries. This year, the environmental office is hoping for a continued Earthday/Earthweek success and would like to invite the community to participate in Naval Station Rota's Earthweek events.

Schedule of Events:

? Monday, April 16: Run, walk, or bike to work with free prizes for the first 30 people through the gates.

? Tuesday, April 17: Multimedia exhibit at the NEX.

? Friday, April 20: Earthday Run at noon with free T-shirts for the runners. Call the Environmental Office at ext. 1420 or ext. 2123 for more.

Holy week reflects the spirit of the people

Maria Foster
Rota Coastline

Spain is known for its numerous festivals during the year, but one of the most famous and memorable is the celebration of Holy Week or "Semana Santa." Semana Santa is the most important Catholic tradition, and has been repeated year after year since the 13th century. While every town in Spain has its own traditions and processions, cities such as Salamanca, Valladolid, Caceres, Murcia, are very important places. The processions in Andalucia are also very special. Semana Santa starts on Domingo de Ramos" (Palm Sunday) and ends on Domingo de Resurrección (Easter).

The brotherhoods (hermandades o cofradías) have the responsibility of maintaining the statues as well as coordinating the peni-

tents and musicians. In some big cities some brotherhoods have more than 2,500 members. The procession begins with the "Cruz de Guía" and is followed by two rows of "nazarenos" carrying candles, rods, banners or the book containing the rules by which the brotherhood is governed. Normally the most senior member of the brotherhood is the "Hermano Mayor" (president).

Other very important people at the processions are the "Costaleros." They carry the floats (pasos). They receive this name for the cushion (costal) they have on their neck to prevent the direct contact of the wood of the floats rubbing against the skin. Sometimes the "costaleros" are members of the brotherhood but sometimes they are professionals.

The "nazarenos" or "penitentes" dress in tunics with hoods and masks, and depending on the brotherhood, the tunic has different colors. The marching band follows the floats and plays religious music. Some professional or amateur singers like to sing "Saetas" while watching the procession. The images at the floats are carved in wood and many of them are from the 17th or 18th century.

The processions begin at their home church and follow an itinerary (Carrera Oficial) to return home. The processions normally have two floats, one representing Christ and the other one representing the Virgin Mary in her sorrow. Some processions with no music are called, "Penitencia" (penitence).

Holy week in Andalucia is a tradition is part of the culture that reflects the spirit of the people, and the way of life in this land. What makes Andalucia different is the "smell of oranges tree blossoms, incense in the air, melted wax on the streets, sounds of drums in the distance, and all the people. Some typical pastries are Torrijas

As I said before, every town or village proudly enjoys Semana Santa, and some preserve certain traditions more than others. Small towns normally hold parades on Holy Thursday and Good Friday, while the large cities have week-long celebrations. Malaga and Sevilla are famous for their processions due to the spectacle and size, but some other towns close to the base like Jerez, Arcos, El Puerto, Cadiz, Rota, and Sanlucar have also very beautiful processions.

STRIKES

As of Wednesday afternoon, only one minor incident was reported on the strike-line, said Lt. Dave Kush, security officer.

"With the exception of one minor incident, it appears that most of the demonstrations have been absolutely peaceful," he said. "I'm very impressed with the way the people have conducted business on both sides of the picket line."

Despite Kush's optimism, he is looking forward to the resolution of the strike issue, he said.

"I'll be pleased when this entire event is over," Kush said.

Endres agrees.

"We're making our way through this week, but we'll be happy when it ends," he said. "The Spanish workforce is very important to us. They keep everything running efficiently."

On Sunday, the employees are scheduled to return to work and resume their normal working hours.

pany located in San Diego, Calif., will consist of four workshops. The workshops are designed to present an equal view of the pros and cons of careers in the Navy and the civilian workforce.

"The Ruelin workshop contrasts and compares the benefits you have as a military person. If you wanted to maintain those benefits outside of the military when you separate, the workshop gives a brief look at what you would have to do in order to do that," said NCC (AW) Eduardo Bastidas, career counselor, Naval Station, Rota.

The workshop will focus on:

- Enhanced professional training for Navy Career Counselors and Command Retention Teams
- Career decision seminars and workshops for Sailors and their families.
- Comprehensive easy-to-use web-based interactive products to aid Sailors and their families in making informed career decisions.
- Consolidation and analysis of the Navy's retention and quality of service data into useful and predictive tools to assist senior leadership in making policy decisions.

The workshops will also include briefings for commanding officers, executive officers, and command master chiefs on Navy retention issues.

"We want people to have an educated view of what to expect if they decide to get out of the military," said Bastidas.

What if there were no volunteers?

What would our community be like if there were no volunteers?

No one to coach the kids. No Navy Marine Corps Relief, or Red Cross or hospital candystriper. No one to tutor at school, or sing at the church, or take care of stray dogs and cats. If there were no volunteers, there wouldn't be anyone to reward students with scholarships, train the Scouts or collect and distribute food at Thanksgiving. There wouldn't be Sunday School or Sabbath services, or Super Sunday Nights. There wouldn't be sponsors to meet you when you step off the plane, or meals to feed you when you're home from the hospital, or Ombudsmen to call when you have a problem.

Yes, ships would still sail and planes would still fly because we pay people to do that much. But, that's about all that would happen. We would still have a military. We just wouldn't have much of a military family.

For all that you do to make life here so good, thank-you! You're not just a volunteer. You're one of those many people who give generously of your time, talent and treasure, to put quality into our life here at Rota.

Thanks! Keep up the good work.

I can only imagine what life would be like without you. And I'd like to keep it that way!

Hacienda Buena Suerte is a dude ranch with American quarter horses located near the town of Villamartin, only about an hour from here. It is owned and operated by Jean Claude and Magda Dysli. Jean Claude spent over 20 years in the horse business in California.

In addition to the possibility of staying at the ranch, they offer several other possibilities that will be of more interest to those of us who live so close by. They offer one-day trail rides of three or six hours; three-day trail rides with overnight camping; evening Flamenco shows with barbecue; and a horse show with open buffet.

As is my custom, I visited the ranch to see what it is like first hand. It is a big place that makes you feel as though you were somewhere in the western U.S. The installations are lovely: rustic and cozy. There is a swimming pool and a park/picnic area. They have a total of 80 horses that includes colts. There are 40 available for riding. Everything appears well managed and organized.

In addition to ranch-related activities Magda organizes seminars in alternative medicine, Yoga, Tai Chi Taiyi-qigong and homeopathics. Give them a call at 956-231286 or visit their web site www.dysli.net for more information.

Decathlon, the big Sports store, just past the new McDonald's on the way to Cádiz is advertising this week to promote their spring and summer campaign. In May, they will hold their annual Trocathlon - the sale of used sporting goods and equipment.

Some of you will remember it from last year. I had planned on giving you more information, but I didn't receive it in time to include it this week so it will have to go in a future column.

Restaurante La Espuela is offering a special menu for 2,000 pesetas per person during the month of April. The menu consists of appetizers, choices for 1st course, 2nd course and dessert, bread and wine.

The offer is valid Monday through Friday. La Espuela is located at the Club Hípico de Rota; just off the old road to Chipiona (take the first right as you enter Rota via the industrial area), there are signs.

Rota Assembly of God has changed their place of worship. They are now located at Rubén Darío, 7, in the Evangelical Church (Iglesia Evangélica), which is almost exactly behind their old location.

Ducati of Cádiz is advertising new, more advantageous prices this week. Check them out in the ad on page 4.

Also, check out the new Reflections Gift Shoppe. Giovana, of the well-known Giovi shop in downtown Rota, operates it. She really has a lot of nicely displayed items at the shop. That means easy and good shopping so stop by and take a look. The store is open late Thursday through Saturday to make it even easier for you.

The Japanese Grill House will now home deliver for a minimum order of only five lunch boxes.

Holy Week starts this Sunday. There are processions every night in all the cities and villages of Andalucía (most of the rest of Spain as well). The most renowned are those in Sevilla and in the immediate area, Jerez. The best nights are usually considered to be Thursday and Friday. Try to attend some; it is worthwhile to take in all the pageantry and beauty.

Next time you visit someplace, let me know what you thought. Let's hear from you! Share with others information about your favorite spots and shops. Contact me by e-mail at coastpub@retemail.es, by fax at 956-542997 or by phone at 956-542997 or 607-564132.

Villamartin

Photos and story by
PH1(AW) Ron Heppner

Graceful arches surround the courtyard of Villamartin's town hall.

Coastline Publisher, Karen Lucas and Kim Diaz recently had business at a horse farm near Villamartin and I rode along to check out the town.

Villamartin is located northeast of Arcos de la Frontera and the reservoirs that provide the water for much of Cadiz province. The central square, the Plaza del Ayuntamiento is easy to find and a good place to start is at the tourist office in the square.

The Church of the Afflictions, which was started in the 17th century, looms above the Plaza del Ayuntamiento. At midday the square bustles with housewives shopping, deliverymen making the rounds, and old men meandering around with no apparent destination. Even though the electronic tones of cell-phones and the whiny buzz of mopeds can be heard, I thought that Villamartin had an old-time feel to it. It's hard to describe, but I felt like if you took away a few tell-tale signs of modern life, the town would be pretty much the same as it was one-hundred years ago.

There is a local history museum that I didn't check out, but it sounded impressive anyway, featuring artifacts from the nearby Dolmens of Alberite and from an eighth-century B.C. Tartesian settlement.

After walking around for awhile I stopped at a small café and had a goat tapa. I don't know if it was a local favorite or a daily special but I've only eaten goat a few times and thought what the heck. As far as I can tell, it was expertly prepared and it didn't taste like chicken.

On our way out of town we decided to find the Dolmens of Alberite, a 6,000 year-old prehistoric necropolis - an elaborate, ancient cemetery - that was just discovered in 1997. We asked directions and drove under a bridge and wound up on a road that was little more than a cow path. Driving on the hole-filled cow path proved even more challenging due to the mud created by recent rains. It really didn't seem like we were getting anywhere, so eventually Kim wheeled the Volvo around and we were out of there.

The tournament consisted of more than 200 participants from various commands on base and youth organizations. "At the event, a lot of people really stressed how much they enjoyed this tournament. ## Women's tennis, the real deal

Do I think that Venus & Serena Williams fixed matches? You bet. Do I think this is such a big deal? No way. It's kind of like when a NASCAR driver slows down in the middle of a race to protect another driver on his team. Serena let up on Venus during the Wimbledon semis so her sister could get a grand slam title too. So what's wrong with that? I mean, c'mon, they're sisters.

The only people that get screwed when Richard tells one of his daughters to take a dive are the paying customers. That does not include the people watching at home 'cause we get to watch for free. The people in the stands that spend $50 to turn their heads back and forth for two hours are the only ones getting the ol' screwgee. And we don't care about them 'cause, well...they're rich. And no one cares about rich people getting the short end. Heck, I cheer when they get it.

Furthermore, its not like Vegas goes into a tizzy when the fix is in. Nobody bets on WTA matches. Personally, I've never met ANYONE who wagers on Women's tennis and I've known some hardcore gamblers. Come to think of it, if you're wagering on Women's professional tennis, a fixed match is the least of your worries. Gamblers Anonymous has a spot for you.

"So what about the fans?" you ask.

Well, as far as I know, Women's tennis doesn't have any fans. They've only got onlookers. The reason for that is rooted in the dearth of fan-worthy talent since Chris Everett retired. The Women's circuit is now chock full of chicks with attitude. Venus, Kournikova and Hingis are just plain nasty. All three are conceited to the point of annoying. Serena, who used to be likable, is apparently taking jerk lessons from her big sis.

Capriati is a great story but she's still a recovering crack-head who is one relapse away from going on the lamb with D-Straw. Seles is past her prime. Davenport is humble and a great player but if she married Pete Sampras, they'd be known as the world's most boring couple.

Like I said, what's to root for in that group?

Sports Talk

with Russ Gambrel

Finally, I don't blame Venus & Serena 'cause I'm sure their daddy put 'em up to it. Richard Williams is a certifiable loon. His rambling, incoherent interviews remind me of Red Foxx on a three-day bender. His behavior at Wimbledon was appalling. His control over Serena and Venus is disturbing. I thought it was interesting that his own daughter wouldn't even corroborate his story about the n-bomb being dropped at Indian Wells. Perhaps this is a sign the girls are fed up with father.

So in the end, we have a victimless crime. A few fat cats pay to see a competition for which the ending is already predetermined (Heck, I do that every time I turn on Smackdown). No money changes hands and no fans become disillusioned (because they're already swimming in disillusionment). As long as they only take dives for each other, more power to the sisters. See ya next week...
